East African Journal of Peace and Human Rights

Call for Papers for a Special Edition of the East African Journal of Peace and Human Rights

The Human Rights and Peace Centre (HURIPEC) at the School of Law, Makerere University in Uganda; the Directorate of Research, Innovations and Community Engagement (DRICE) at St. Augustine University (SAUT) in Tanzania and the Centre for Resolution of International Conflicts (CRIC) at the University of Copenhagen in Denmark, hereby invite authors to submit full academic articles for a special issue of The East African Journal of Peace and Human Rights, under the theme: Charcoal Conflict in Climate Change's Decarbonisation Dilemmas: Knots of Livelihood, Nutrition, Communities, Gender, Migration and Energy in East Africa. Submissions are welcome from members of the academia, government, civil society and corporate sectors particularly from Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania, Sudan, South Sudan, Rwanda, Burundi, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Somalia and Ethiopia.

Authors can also submit articles on broader topics related to deforestation, REDD+, fossil fuels, carbon credits, global energy dilemmas, among others. However, these topics must be related to Africa or an African country, either in themselves or in relation to other regions. While the articles must primarily relate to the law, they can apply multidisciplinary theories and approaches to the topic. All articles must be in English.

Interested authors should submit their papers electronically to journal.huripec@mak.ac.ug, with a copy to sylvie.namwase@mak.ac.ug

Important Dates:

About the EAJPHR

The Journal is an international, peer-reviewed, bi-annual scholarly publication of the Human Rights and Peace Centre (HURIPEC) at the School of Law, Makerere University. The Journal has since its inception in 1993 remained at the forefront of igniting intellectual and policy debates on contemporary governance and human rights issues in the East African region and beyond. It seeks to provide a platform to scholars, researchers and practitioners in the fields of governance and human rights to disseminate cutting-edge research and share knowledge and experiences.
